

From Better Living Through Chemistry by Dawson Moore

MEGAN: Female, 20s. Innocent, naïve, trying to explain why she dropped LSD for the first time about an hour ago.

MEGAN

Why did I do it? I... I... would you believe that they tricked me? Yeah, it was peer pressure! No? (pause) Oh, well, you're probably right. Really, though, isn't it just nature? Like cows. You see them standing around grazing, and you assume that all that grass tastes the same. But it doesn't. That's the cows' menu, and just like people, they have their own tastes. And their favorite delicacy? The mushrooms that grow from their own shit! BECAUSE they're hallucinogenic. Because they want to see the world differently. So that it's not just mating and grazing and sleeping and waiting to do... to see something beyond the reality that YOU'VE laid in front of us, God! You hear me? WhywasIsayingthis... oh yeah... It's all your fault, God... you are to blame!